El Boletín Oficial de la Comunidad Catolica de Santo Niño

June 19, 2016

The incident in today's Gospel [Luke 9:18-24] is based on Mark 8:27-33, but Luke has eliminated Peter's refusal to accept Jesus as suffering Son of Man [Mark 8:32] and the rebuke of Peter by Jesus [Mark 8:33]. Elsewhere in the gospel, Luke softens the harsh portrait of Peter and the other apostles found in his Marcan source [Luke 22:39-46], which similarly lacks a rebuke of Peter that occurs in the source, Mark 14:37-38.

The disciples list a whole series of labels that people have applied to Jesus. And these names reveal all the different expectations held about him. Some thought of him as an Elijah, working toward a real confrontation with the powers that be. Some saw him as one of the ancient prophets. The replies of the disciples are varied, as are those of each of us today when Jesus, through someone else's lips, asks us the same question, and with increasing frequency and intensity.

The struggle to identify Jesus and his role as Messiah continues today. Some say the individual Christian and the whole church should be Elijah figures, confronting systems, institutions, national policies. That was the way Elijah saw his task. We only need to read the First Book of Kings [Chapters 17 to 21] to confirm this fact. Some say, like Jeremiah, that the domain of Christ, through his church, is the personal and private side of life. Significantly Jesus probes beyond both and asks, "You, who do you say I am."

Who is this Jesus for us? This is indeed the only question that really matters.

UNA REFLEXIÓN PARA NUESTRO TIEMPO

La importancia vital de Dios en nuestras vidas, resalta la celebración del día padre. Esta fiesta debe llevarnos a mirar el Rostro misericordioso de Dios; Él por naturaleza es un Dios de Amor, él es el Amor, encarnado en Jesús.

Las lecturas nos hacen mirar a Dios, nos muestran al Mesías: a Dios mismo hecho hombre, que se entrega para redimirnos de nuestra esclavitud al pecado:

En Evangelio, Jesús nos invita a tomar la cruz y seguirlo, como padres, esa cruz significa también asumir la misión de ser buen padre, amoroso, dialogador, misericordioso y también un padre que, unido a muchos otros lleven adelante el progreso y el desarrollo de la humanidad —como ofrenda a Dios— a esta humanidad que tanto falta entre los hombres, porque cada vez nos cuentan más como números que como personas.
